Forecast For Wales
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Thursday 14 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Wet to start for many, turning drier later.

Today:
A wet start across the country with lingering showers persisting throughout the morning. Showers slowly fading during the afternoon for the western areas. Feeling mild and breezy in the west but turning colder for many from the east. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Tonight:
A largely dry and cloudy evening with some scattered showers for the eastern parts of the country. Remaining cloudy overnight with any showers clearing. Minimum temperature 0 deg C (32 deg F).

Friday:
A dry and mostly cloudy morning across the country with some sunny spells during the afternoon. Low cloud developing in the evening and remaining throughout the night. Rather cold. Maximum temperature 9 deg C (48 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Wind and rain on Saturday, heavy at times, moving eastwards, leaving a largely dry and cloudy night. Sunday mostly dry with sunny spells. Monday rather unsettled with possible heavy rain.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.